Don't Decrease Light on Layers

Stretching the daylight hours by artificial lighting will pay dividends in the poultry flock.

However, says Denver D. Bragg, poultry specialist at VPI, there are a few "do's and don'ts" to remember.

A pullet that has 15 to 16 hours of light per day during the growing period will usually not lay as well as one raised under normal day-light conditions, or under a restricted poultry program. However, when the pullet reaches production age, say 13- or 14- hour day, or an increasing day length, is desirable. The thing to remember is never decrease the light on layers. If they are raised uner normal day-light conditions, provide them a steady 14- hour day throughout the laying period, or a steady 14- hour day to production peak, then increase the day length about 15 minutes every two weeks until they are sold.

If they have been raisd under a restricted lighting program of, say, 6 hours of light from 10 to 20 or 22 weeks of age, then the day length should probably be increased from then on about 15 minutes per week until they have about a 20-hour day or until they are sold.

Time-clock settings should be changed at least every 2 weeks in the fall. If the time-clock setting the same time each day, the shorter not changed and the lights go on at evening day length will probably cause some loss in production. And Bragg emphasizes that just a 4 percent drop in production can cost $48 per thousand hens per month when eggs are selling at 48¢ a dozen. Time-clock setting schedules are available from county agents, or from VPI poultry department, Blacksburg.

Bragg also has a newr note for poultrymen about iron in egg-wash water. Work done by U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists has shown that traces of iron, (10 ppm) in the egg-wash water will increase both the rate and extent of spoilage. So take care to prevent contamination of shell eggs with iron during processing.

Bragg also warns against feed losses from rats and wild birds that may get into the poultry house. Fifty starlings will eat 8 pounds of feed per day. When feed is 4¢ a pound, this adds up to $116 a year. And 50 sparrows will eat 2 pounds of feed per day, costing about $29 per year. This will buy a lot of poultry netting.

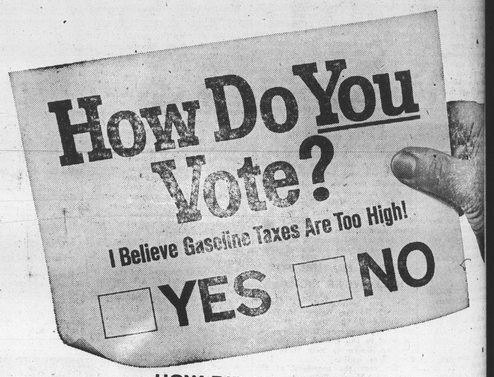
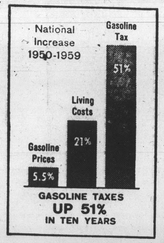
IN VIRGINIA YOU PAY $1.10 TAX ON TEN GALLONS OF GASOLINE



HOW DID YOU VOTE?

No matter how you voted, these facts on gasoline taxes are important to you:



GASOLINE TAXES UP 51% IN TEN YEARS

- Everywhere in Virginia, car owners pay $1.10 tax on every 10 gallons of gasoline they buy!
- Gasoline taxes across the nation amount to a 50% sales tax—and that's five times as high as the tax rate on luxuries like diamonds and mink coats!
- Since World War II, there have been three increases in the Federal gasoline tax alone. This brought the Federal tax to 4 cents a gallon, in addition to the State tax of 7 cents a gallon!
- In the last ten years gasoline taxes have skyrocketed 51%—yet the price of gasoline itself has risen only 5.5% during the same period!
- Each year the average motor vehicle owner in this state pays $96 for gasoline taxes alone. That's actually more than the average week's pay for most people!

HIGHWAYS AND GASOLINE TAXES

Your gasoline retailer, naturally, favors construction of the roads that the motoring public needs. He believes in fair and reasonable taxation for this purpose but feels that taxes on gasoline have now reached unreasonably high levels. He also believes that all special taxes on the motorist should be used only for highway purposes. Yet last year out of every automobile tax dollar collected by the Federal Government from highway users, more than 60 cents went for non-highway purposes. If these automotive tax revenues were dedicated for highway purposes, there would be no need for the latest increase in the federal gasoline tax.
